No. 6. Decorated For Bravery; Home and Uncle Sam.

This is the concluding article of the series of six by Sergeant McClintock, an American boy of Lexington, Ky., who has seen service in France, was decorated for bravery and invalided home. He has been promised a commission in our army. The first five installments told of the fighting in Belgium and on the Somme, where he was desperately wounded. This final installment describes his journey to the rear with twenty-two pieces of shrapnel in one leg and his meeting with the King in a London hospital.

I WAS taken from Pozières to Albert in a Ford ambulance or, as the Tommies would say, a "tin Lizzie." The man who drove this vehicle would make a good chauffeur for an adding machine. Apparently he was counting the bumps in the road, for he didn't miss one of them. However, the trip was only a matter of seven miles, and I was in fair condition when they lifted me out and carried me to an operating table in the field dressing station.

A chaplain came along and murmured a little prayer in my ear. I imagine that would have made a man feel very solemn if he had thought there was a chance he was about to pass out, but I knew I merely had a leg pretty badly smashed up, and while the chaplain was praying I was wondering if they would have to cut it off. I figured, if so, this would handicap my dancing.

The first formality in a shrapnel case is the administration of an anti-tetanus inoculation, and when it is done you realize that they are sure trying to save your life. The doctor uses a horse spring, and the injection leaves a lump on your chest as big as a baseball, which stays with you for forty-eight hours. After the injection a nurse fills out a diagnosis blank with a description of your wounds and a record of your name, age, regiment, regimental number, religion, parentage and previous history as far as she can discover it without asking questions which would be positively indelicate. After all of that my wounds were given their first real dressing.

Immediately after this was done I was bundled into another ambulance and driven to Contay, where the C. C. S. (casualty clearing station) and railhead were located. In the ambulance with me were three other soldiers, an artillery officer and two privates of infantry. We were all ticketed off as shrapnel-cases and probable recoveries, which latter detail is remarkable, since the most slightly injured of the four had twelve wounds, and there were sixty odd shell fragments or shrapnel balls collectively imbedded in us. The nurse had told me that I had about twenty wounds. Afterward her count proved conservative. More accurate and later returns showed twenty-two bullets and shell fragments were in my leg. They took these out and presented them to me. I have been giving them away for souvenirs.

We were fairly comfortable in the ambulance, and I especially had great relief from the fact that the nurse had strapped my leg in a sling attached to the top of the vehicle. We smoked cigarettes and chatted cheerfully, exchanging congratulations on having got "clean ones"—that is, wounds not probably fatal. The artillery officer told me he had been supporting our battalions flat morning with one of the sacrifice batteries.

A sacrifice battery, I might explain, is one composed of field pieces which are emplaced between the front and support lines and which in case of an attack or counterattack are fired at point blank range. They call them sacrifice batteries because some of them are wiped out every day. This officer said our battalion that morning had been supplied by an entire division of artillery and that on our front of 400 yards the eighteen pounders alone, in a curtain fire which lasted thirty-two minutes, had discharged 15,000 rounds of high explosive shells. I was impressed by his statement, of course, but I told him that, while this was an astonishing lot of ammunition, it was even more surprising to have noticed at close range, as I did, the number of Germans they missed. To mark the end of our trip to Contay we were much exhausted and pretty badly winded twenty-two, they told me that perhaps there were a few more in there, but they thought they'd better let them stay.

My wounds had become septic, and it was necessary to give all attention to drainage and cure. It was about this time that everything for awhile seemed to become hazy and my memories got all queerly mixed up and confused. I recollect I conceived a violent dislike for a black dog that appeared from nowhere now and then and began chewing at my leg, and I believe I gave the nurse a severe talking to because she insisted on going to look at the ball game when she ought to be sitting by to chase that dog away. And I was perfectly certain about her being at the ball game, because I saw her there when I was playing third base.

The Alarming Cablegram:

It was at this time (on Nov. 28, 1916, ten days after I had been wounded) that my father in Lexington received the following cablegram from the officer in charge of the Canadian records in England:

Sincerely regret to inform you that Sergeant Alexander McClintock is officially reported dangerously ill in No. 5 general hospital from gunshot wound in left thigh. Further particulars supplied when received.

It appears that during the time of my adventures with the black dog and the hazy nurse my temperature had descended to the stage when the doctors began to admit another method of treatment might have been successful. But I didn't pass out. The one thing I most regret about my close call is that my parents in Lexington were in unreleaved suspense about my condition until I myself sent them a cable from London on Dec. 15. After the first official message, seemingly prepared almost as a preface to the announcement of my demise, my father received no news of me whatever. And as I didn't know that the official message had gone, I cabled nothing to him until I was feeling fairly chipper again. You can't have wars, though, without these little misunderstandings.

If it were possible I should say something here which would be fitting and adequate about the Englishwomen who nursed the 2,500 wounded men in general hospital No. 5 at Rouen, but that power isn't given me. All I can do is to fall back upon our most profound American expression of respect and say that my hat is off to them.

One nurse in the ward in which I had been on her feet for fifty-six hours with hardly time even to eat. She finally fainted from exhaustion, was carried out of the ward and was back again in four hours, assisting at an operation. And the doctors were doing their bit, too, in living up to the obligations which they considered to be theirs. An operating room was in every ward, with five tables in each. After the fight on the Somme, in which I was wounded, not a table was vacant any hour in the twenty-four for days at a time. Outside of each room was a long line of stretchers containing patients next awaiting surgical attention. And in all that stress I did not hear one word of complaint from the surgeons who stood hour after hour, using their skill and training for the petty pay of English army medical officers.

On Dec. 5 I was told I was well enough to be sent to England, and on the next day I went on a hospital train from Rouen to Harrods. Here I was placed on a hospital ship which even a medical officer in our army ought to have a chance to inspect. Nothing ingenuity could contrive for convenience and comfort was missing. Patients were sent below decks in elevators and then placed in swinging cradles which hung level no matter what the ship's motion might be. As soon as I had been made comfortable in my particular cradle I was given a box man so fearless and ferocious as the Red Cross emblem. On the top of each of the cars in this train there was a Red Cross big enough to be seen from miles in the rear. The German aviators accepted them merely as excellent targets. Their bombs quickly knocked three or four cars from the rails and killed several of the helplessly wounded men. The rest of the patients, weak and nervous from recent shock and injury, some of them half delirious and nearly all of them absolutely helpless and in pain, were thrown into near panic.

Two of the nursing sisters in charge of the train were the coolest individuals present. They walked calmly up and down its length, urging the patients to remain quiet, directing the male attendants how to remove the wounded men safely from the wrecked cars and paying no attention whatever to the bombs which were still exploding near the train. I did not have the privilege of witnessing this scene myself, but I know that I have accurately described it, for the details were told in an official report when the king decorated the two sisters with the Royal Red Cross for valor in the face of the enemy.

The trip from Contay to Rouen was a nightmare—twenty-six hours traveling 150 miles on a train which was forever stopping and starting, its jerky and uncertain progress meaning to us just hours and hours of suffering. I do not know whether this part of the system for the removal of wounded has been improved now. Then, its inconveniences and imperfections must have been inevitable, for in every way afterward the most thoughtful and tender care was shown us. In the long rows of bunks which compose the British general hospital at Rouen we found ourselves in what seemed like paradise.

In the hut which constituted the special ward for leg wounds I was lifted from the stretcher on which I had traveled all the way from Pozières into a comfortable bed with fresh, clean sheets, and instantly I found myself surrounded with quiet, trained, efficient care. I forgot the pain of my wounds and the dread of the coming operation when a tray of delicious food was placed beside my bed and a nurse prepared me for the enjoyment of it by bathing my face and hands with scented water.

On the following morning my leg was X-rayed and photographed. I told the surgeon I thought the business of operating could very well be put off until I had had about three more square meals, but he couldn't see it that way. In the afternoon I got my first sickening dose of ether, and they took the first lot of iron out of me. I suppose these were just the surface deposits, for they only got five or six pieces. However, they continued systematically. I had five more operations, and every time I came out of the other the row of bullets and shell scraps at the foot of my bed was a little longer. After the number had surplus stock. If I had undertaken to eat and drink and smoke all the things that were brought to me by Americans just because I was an American I'd be back in that hospital now only getting fairly started on the job. It's none of my business when you need it.

Wounded Get Great Welcome.

The wounded soldier getting back to England doesn't have a chance to imagine that his services are not appreciated. The welcome he receives begins at the railroad station. All traffic is stopped by the bobbies to give the ambulances a clear way leaving the station. The people stand in crowds, the men with their hats off, while the ambulance passes. Women rush out and throw flowers to the wounded men. Sometimes there is a cheer, but usually only silence and words of sympathy.

all calibers, aircraft, coast defenses must be created. The navy would need to be greatly augmented with a big number of submarines. This force would have to be kept up to date with incessant changes. The United States would be spending several billions a year on its army and navy.

If the United States will continue in this war with all its heart, it can put an end to this menace. It is not a question of seizing any territory belonging to the German people. It is simply a question of demonstrating to them that autocracy does not pay. When that fact is demonstrated, they will reorganize on a democratic basis. Then the United States can disarm, or nearly so. It will be made much cheaper to fight it out for a year or two than to endure militarism indefinitely.

READING FOR SOLDIERS.

"Clip as well as knit," is the request of the army men for the soldier boys. Anything in the way of newspaper clippings, or still better whole newspapers or magazines, would be more than welcome in the camps, particularly in France.

Nothing would do a homesick soldier any more good than to be made a regular recipient of his home newspaper. If you can't afford to subscribe for him, roll up back numbers of the paper and send them to him. If you did feel like putting him on the list, he would bless you.

Much is said about the need for keeping our soldier boys away from the temptations of army life. One of the greatest causes of vice is an unoccupied mind. If the army lines are well supplied with tents where there is plenty of interesting reading matter, a great many idle hours will be pleasantly filled. The fellow who is quietly reading the home paper or an American magazine is not chasing around the outskirts of the camp looking for trouble.

There isn't any possibility of getting too much of this stuff. The home paper will be read by soldiers who come from many miles distant and know nothing of the place where it is published. But anything American will look good to them. Our popular magazines will be thumbed over until they are reduced to rags.

Arrangements will be made for forwarding to the soldiers large quantities of old magazines and newspapers. Let us all begin now to save this material. It will be needed. It will take but a few moments of time and a bit of postage to get it to the way. Let us not begrudge this bit of friendly co-operation with our boys, who are giving so much to their country, and who need all the good cheer that the home folks can send them.

ACCEPTANCE OF DRAFT.

Tumorous people have feared a great upheaval on the occasion of the draft. They foresaw crowds parading the streets of the cities waving red, flags and yelling: "Down with the government!" Instead of that such draft disturbances as have occurred would be utterly insignificant were they not one evidence of the vast and complicated plotter system that is working all the time to beat out our government.

The American people have the reputation of being undisciplined. They do break out into riots much too frequently. Rare feeling anger at men who have taken their jobs during strikes, and such survivals of primitive passions incite the rougher type of men to mob action.

But when it comes to the call of the government to act and arm, the response is as prompt as in an autocratic country. If there is delay it is because our politicians quarrel and talk, not because there is any lack of spirit of unity on the part of the people. The principle of acceptance of majority rule has become ingrained into our national fiber as the result of generations of successful democratic government. It is a great safeguard.

With 800,000 men now under arms in this country the date when the Germans were coming over to collect that indemnity out of New York is postponed for a few weeks.

It would seem as if the Russians might wait until the Germans fire a horse pistol, instead of running when they discharge a popgun.

The food speculators finally decided to be patriotic and allow congress to pass the food bill.

You can't get exempted for heart trouble of the summer-girl kind.

WAR TAXES.

(Philadelphia Record.) — The computation that the new war revenue bill would raise a little more than 20 per cent of the cost of the war is an error, because it is based upon an estimate of $10,000,000 as the war's cost for a year. This figure was available, and probably resulted from the inclusion of a round five billions which it has been reported that our government would lend the allies. This might not be included. Money to be loaned to our allies must be raised by the sales of bonds; it is unreasonable to suppose that we shall levy taxes to raise money to lend to our allies on long-term bonds.

The report of the finance committee of the senate is now available, and it is seen that the estimated expenses for the fiscal year 1917, beginning July 1st, are $5,693,958,000. Against this the existing laws would raise $1,337,000,000, and the bill reported from the finance committee would raise $2,066,476,000, a total to be raised by taxation of $3,363,379,000, or about two-thirds of the total estimated disbursement. The revenue from the Liberty loan and disbursements in 1917 and 1918 reimbursable from the sale of bonds is $2,342,369,000. The aggregate proceeds of taxes and loans would be $5,777,470,000, or about $64,000,000 more than is estimated to be necessary. According to the tabular statement prepared by Senator Simmons, the additional sum, above existing laws, necessary to be raised by taxation or a further bond issue, is $1,013,458,000, and to meet that

That Yellowstone National Park was set apart by act of Congress in 1872 as a public park or pleasure area.

It is proposed to levy taxes of $2,066,970,000.

The amount to be raised by taxes is greater than the amount to be raised by loans, and nothing like that was ever attempted before in a war involving large expenses. The following is the language of Senator Simmons:

"The bill as passed by the house, together with existing law, will raise by taxation 56 per cent of the estimated expenditures already appropriated for, exclusive of postal revenue and the sinking fund requirements. As amended by your committee such per cent will be increased to 55."

We believe that no government ever undertook anything like this. England is raising somewhere from one-sixth to one-quarter of the war costs by taxation, and it is proposed that we shall raise more than one-half.

There is no precedent for such war finance, and it looks as though the bill were less an effort to make sound and adequate provision for the expenses of the war than to get money away from rich men, and especially from men who have made profits out of the war. If it is deemed necessary for ethical reasons to get their money away from them, several of the other taxes might have been omitted, for there is no justification for raising more than half the costs of government, during a huge war, from current revenue.

Whether a man or a woman who openly attacks the government or the people of the United States in time of war has transgressed to the point of treason by "adhering to the enemies of the United States, giving them aid and comfort."

We believe that no government ever undertook anything like this. England is raising somewhere from one-sixth to one-quarter of the war costs by taxation, and it is proposed that we shall raise more than one-half.

There is no precedent for such war finance, and it looks as though the bill were less an effort to make sound and adequate provision for the expenses of the war than to get money away from rich men, and especially from men who have made profits out of the war. If it is deemed necessary for ethical reasons to get their money away from them, several of the other taxes might have been omitted, for there is no justification for raising more than half the costs of government, during a huge war, from current revenue.

Whether a man or a woman who openly attacks the government or the people of the United States in time of war has transgressed to the point of treason by "adhering to the enemies of the United States, giving them aid and comfort."

WAR TIME NERVOUSNESS

In these war times many people are living in an unnatural condition of nervous excitement. Unless something is done to correct it the inevitable result will be a nervous breakdown, an exhaustion of nervous energy that may take a very serious and unforeseen turn.

Nervousness is one such result with its accompaniment of worry, irritability, oversensitiveness and severe headache. It means that the patient has lost the power to recover and store up energy. The condition will grow worse if not corrected.

The treatment is one of nutrition of the nerve cells, requiring a non-alcoholic tonic. As the nerves get their nourishment from the blood the treatment must be directed towards building up the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on the blood, and have proved of the greatest benefit in many cases of neurasthenia. A tendency to anemia, or bloodlessness, shown by most neurasthenic patients, is also corrected by these tonic pills. Two useful books, "Diseases of the Nervous System" and "What to Eat and How to Eat" will be sent free by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

KNIFE TREMBLED IN HIS HAND AT SUPPER TIME

But the Dreadful Nervousness Which Caused It Surrendered to Nerv-Worth.

This statement will become exceedingly useful to the victims of shattered nerves if they take advantage of the pointer it gives:

"Before I took Nerv-Worth I was in a very nervous condition. In the evening at the supper table I could scarcely hold my knife. I spent many a restless night and was fidgety and irritable all day. My kidneys bothered me a great deal and I had sharp pains in my back. I have taken two bottles of Nerv-Worth now and my nerves are of the soundest, sleep well and have a real appetite for all my meals! My pains in the back have left me and I can recommend Nerv-Worth to any who are bothered as I was."

Milady's Boudoir

An Attractive Bed. "What shall I do Marie to make my bed look attractive?" asked Marjorie, as she longingly peeped into her aunt's boudoir where Marie was smoothing and arranging Madame's bed.

"Why not a pretty valance around your bed? It would make it look very dainty and dressed up, I am sure. Nothing so dresses up a room as a valance falling to the floor all around a bed."

"Your room is small too," continued Marie. "In a small room the valance affords opportunity to tuck away a suitcase or handbox under the bed, not as a commendable custom in the interest of neatness, but one most apartments of small size have to come to."

"What shall I make it of?" asked Marjorie.

"The valance should be of washable material," continued Marie. White dotted swiss or figured madras will be fresh and dainty if an ordinary white spread is used on the bed. It is something of a problem before one has learned the trick, to attach the valance to an iron bedstead. If tied to the bed with tapes the valance will be sure to sag after a day or so, and in many cases it must be so put on that it may be removed once a month for laundering.

The best way is to cut an old sheet exactly the size of the spring and attach the valance to this. Turn the sheet over the spring and attach it with snap-button fasteners to four tapes sewed around the four bed posts.

The valance cannot be a continuous ruffle but must be slip up at the corners of the sheet, the ruffle falling at the sides and foot of the bed. If it is sufficiently full, it will hide the legs of the bed and snap button fastener will help to hold the edges of the ruffle together.

POPE WRITES OWN DRAFT OF PLANS TO BRING PEACE

ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM

Rome, Tuesday, Aug. 14.—The peace proposals of Pope Benedict were written entirely in his own handwriting. The pope consulted Cardinal Gaspari, papal secretary of state; Archbishop Ceretti, assistant papal secretary of state, and Monsignor Tedeschini, papal under-secretary of state, in formulating the document. Archbishop Ceretti, who arrived recently from America, where he stopped on his journey from Australia, is now supervising translation of the communication into English.

The Giornale d'Italia says the papal appeal is the most impressive and most concrete ever addressed to the belligerents, giving them the general lines on which peace negotiations may be initiated. It adds:

"The explicit terms in which the note is worded led to the supposition that the intentions of the two belligerent groups are not absolute conflict with the ideas and hopes of the pope."

The Tribuna expresses the opinion that the peace proposals were made on independent initiative and that the entente powers will not feel in any way constrained to accept them, although they will receive them with the deference due the sender.

The Idea Nazionale says it will abstain for the present from expressing an opinion as to the opportunity of the papal initiative.

The pope's peace proposals were sent by couriers to the European governments. Arrangements were made to telegraph the document from England to Washington and Tokio on account of the time which would be required to forward it to those points by courier or mail.

Training Children.

Do these things for your children, says Leo Tolstoy, if you would properly train them:

Let them do all they can for themselves—carry their own jugs, wash up, arrange their own rooms, clean their boots and clothes, lay the table. Believe me, that unimportant as these things may seem, they are a hundred times more important for your children's happiness than a knowledge of French or of history.

These things train the children to simplicity, to work and to self independence.

If you can add work on the land, if it be but a kitchen garden, that will be well.

Believe me, that without that condition there is no possibility of a moral education, a Christian education of a consciousness of the fact that men are not naturally divided into the classes of masters and slaves, but that they are all brothers and equals.

Sand Dunes in Gascony.

One of the most interesting and remarkable of the many regions for the observation of sand dunes lies between Bordeaux and Bayonne, in Gascony.

The sea here throws every year upon the beach, along a line of 100 miles in length, some 5,000,000 cubic yards of sand. The prevailing westerly winds continue picking up the surface particles from the westward slope, whirl them over to the inward slope, where they are again deposited, and the entire ridge by this means alone moves gradually inward. In the course of years there has thus been formed a complex system of dunes, all approximately parallel with the coast and with one another and of all attitudes up to 250 feet. These are marching steadily inward at a rate of from three to six feet a year, whole villages having sometimes been torn down to prevent burial and rebuilt at a distance.

When Joe Covered Europe.

During the long tertiary epoch, when opossums disported themselves on the site of Paris and mastodons tramped along the valley of the Thames, the earth was in the throes of mountain making. The Alps, the Himalayas, the Alleghenies, the Andes, attest the power of her activity in those days. At their termination our continents stood greatly higher than they do now, and this aided their glaciation, although it does not fully account for it. But as they became loaded with ice Europe and America gradually and we may venture to say contemporaneously sank. This was inevitable. Owing to the extreme heat and pressure prevailing in its interior the earth is an eminently elastic body. Its surface actually bulges in or out with a very slight increase or decrease of the load upon it.

Swapping Horses.

An Indiana man was traveling down the Ohio on a steamer with a mare and two-year-old colt, when by a sudden career of the boat all three were tilted into the water. The Hoosier, as he rose piling and blowing above water, caught hold of the tail of the colt, not having a doubt but that the natural instinct of the animal would carry him safely ashore. The old mare made for the land, but the frightened colt swam lustily down the current with its owner still hanging fast. "Let go of the colt and hang on to the mare!" shouted some of his friends. "Booh!" exclaimed the Hoosier, spouting the water from his mouth. "It's mighty fine telling me to let go the colt, but to a man who can't swim this ain't exactly the time for swapping horses."

Ottawa Citizen.

Parallel Stories.

When Napoleon was a student at Brienne he happened to be asked by one of the examiners the following question: "Supposing you were in an invested town, threatened with starvation, how would you supply yourself with provisions?"

"From the enemy," replied the sublieutenant of artillery. And this answer so pleased the examiners that they passed him without further questioning. Now, Napoleon's answer was by no means original, for one of Suratoff's sergeants obtained promotion from the ranks by giving the very same answer when asked the same question.

Hot Applications.

As a substitute for hot water bags in ordinary ailments, such as toothache, earache and other minor pains, use common flannel bags made in convenient sizes, with drawstrings. Fill them with hot sand or salt and they are easier than a cheap rubber bottle, just as efficacious and much handier to use. Keep half a dozen ready. They are of great help in time of aches and pains.

Porpoise and Whale.

Whales and porpoises are mammals, like cattle and sheep, and their flesh is "meat," not "fish." In texture and appearance it resembles beef, though the color is darker red, and the flavor is closer to that meat than to any other. It is devoid of all fishy taste.

In the Court.

"Now, my good woman, I will take up the subject of your dispute with your husband."

"But you can't take it up, your honor."

"Why can't I, madam?"

"If the parlor carpet, sir?"—Baltmore American.

Death.

Death opens the gate of fame and shuts the gate of envy after it; it loosens the chain of the captive and puts the bondman's task into another man's hand.—Sterne.

He who practices it will have neighbors.—Confucius.

Don't be little.

Even the small potato may suffer from the blight.

GRANGE MEMBERS TO ORGANIZE FOR GREAT TUG OF WAR*GOODBY

Dedicated to the Soldiers Who Have Given at Their Country's Call

By S. S. LEWIS

Pomona Grange, parent organization of the 26 subordinate granges of Licking county, has accepted the challenge to enter a team in the tug-of-war which will be pulled off Wednesday, September 12, at the Licking County Fair. The tug-of-war will be between one team of 26 grangers and a team of town-men.

At the last meeting of Pomona Grange, a committee consisting of Homer C. Price, Newark township; Frank Weis, Vanatta, and Edmund Burke, Utica, was appointed to represent the grange and make the arrangements. They are sending our letters to the secretaries of the 26 grangers, urging them to have one representative and two alternates appointed so that the grange team will be fully completed. These representatives and alternates will meet at the courthouse, Saturday, September 8, at 1 p.m., to organize and make ready to defeat the town-tuggers.

The tug-of-war is postponed from the Farmers' and Merchants' picnic. Each member of the winning team will receive $1. It will take place in front of the grandstand in the afternoon.

N. D. O. Wilson, the new county superintendent, will be in charge of the school exhibits and nearly every township will enter the competition in the various grades.

The absolute care for worry is to be as the bird, which flies above the wind dust and is therefore not troubled.

So we must fly above the worries of the earth."

DON'T WORRY," SAYS BISHOP.

An Evil That Shortens Life, Dr. Woodcock Asserts.

"Be as the bird, which flies above the wind blown dust and is therefore not worried." This is Bishop Charles E. Woodcock's advice to those who worry.

In his sermon at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York, the bishop, who is the head of a Kentucky diocese, said:

"The people are getting very badly mixed up. They are shortening their lives by ten years through needless worry. Worry weakens the heart and hardens the arteries. People are carried away by the mistaken idea that one cannot live without worry. Men and women doing anything on God's earth should have no time to weaken their souls by unnecessary worry."

"Worry is an evil. It destroys more than rum or vice. Worry wastes life. It is as sinful as drinking or gambling."

It is a guilty and cowardly thing. It is always a personal weakness.

"The absolute care for worry is to be as the bird, which flies above the wind dust and is therefore not troubled.

So we must fly above the worries of the earth."

EXEMPTED UNDER NEW INSTRUCTIONS

Drafted men who have been exempted on various grounds and have felt that they escaped military duty, stand a pretty good chance of being recalled for further investigation if the draft board complies with orders of Provost Marshal General Crowder. If the order to appear for re-examination does not come from the local board, it is not unlikely that the appropriate board will send out such a call that none may escape duty without just cause.

Since the original draft regulations were issued, additional rulings have been sent out by General Crowder. Some of these have been received by the local general.

HAPPIER.

When life's shadows grow dim and the twilight of years settles upon us, the most comforting companion, the most dependable one to look to for cheer in our declining years is a few hundred dollars invested in Municipal bonds that are earning us a tidy income. We sometimes lose track of the fact that we cannot always work as we do now. Many an old couple could be happier and far more comfortable today if just a little foresight had been used in their younger days. Provide for your declining years by investing in good Municipal bonds such as those sold by D. H. Pigg who represents the Security Municipal Bond Co., room 703, Trust building. 15-4-11

TANLAC MADE JOE HAPPY AS A LARK

Master Medicine Made Rheumatism Quit Rogers' Arms and Now His Heart Just Leaps With Joy.

Smiles are really playing "tag" on Joe Rogers' face these August days. Joe is the happiest man in Newark since Tanlac smote his rheumatism a terrific blow. "I haven't a pain anywhere now," says he. His home is at 97 Lincoln avenue. He gives the details of his experience with the Master Medicine as follows:

"I haven't a pain anywhere now. Before I used Tanlac I was so crippled up with rheumatism in my shoulders and arms I had to tug and twist to get my coat on. My muscles were sore as a hell and were so stiff they'd crack. My stomach wasn't doing any good either, and I felt weak, nervous and worn out."

"I want to say that Tanlac relieved me of all that misery, and I'm mighty happy. It only took a few doses to give me relief. I finished the bottle and all the pain was gone, even the soreness and stiffness. My stomach began digesting my food, my appetite picked up and I began feeling strong. My nerves are the best in years and I'm sleeping some, too."

Tanlac, the new vegetable tonic, stomachic, combatant and invigorant, is being specially introduced at Erman's Arcade drug store, where the Tanlac man gives the patients steadily growing crowds daily. Tanlac may also be procured at the Evans Pharmacy, Warren Hotel, 1st, east side square, Newark, and the Hebrew Drug Store, Hebron, O. (Adv.)

COME EARLY.

School is only a few days away and you will soon begin to worry about the books you will require for the coming school term. There is no use of this worry and putting off to the last minute to get the books you will require. Don't you remember how in the past years you could secure just the books you would want by going a week or ten days before school opened to Edington's Book Store and how easy it was for you to get the right books, and how much more pleasant it was to buy early and avoid the rush. Come early and get your books we are prepared to help you right now. Come in early.

Readers' Viewpoint*Tribute to Trustee Holler.

Editor Advocate:—During my association of three and a half years with the late William Holler in the affairs of Newark township I always found him careful, patient, diligent and conscientious to the highest degree. While always keeping an eye single to the public service, he was patient, considerate and courteous with all classes of the people, seeking only to deal justly and righteously in all cases.

In the largest and best sense he was always "good" to the poor and unfortunate, not only showing a disposition to give them all necessary relief but to give them his sympathy and friendly counsel, and above all to give them his uniform support, thereby showing himself a safe and sure model for all charity workers and all persons who have dealt with the subjects of weakness or misfortune.

For if there be anything, Mr. Editor, that the object of charity need, it is not abrupt manners or severe lectures, but a vital interest in their welfare and proper respect for their common humanity.

And I claim that the same thing is true concerning wrongdoers. For are they not also creatures of the same flesh and blood as the rest of mankind?

M. R. SCOTT,
Clerk Newark Township.

THE NEWARK DAILY ADVOCATE*COSHOCOTON WOMAN IS DROWNED; BUGGY UPSET

Coshocotan, Aug. 15.—Mrs. M. H. Puffer, aged 55, was drowned in Mohican Creek, near here, late yesterday, when the buggy in which she was fording the stream was overturned by the current. Her husband, who was also in the buggy, escaped after making vain efforts to rescue his wife.

LOCAL MERCHANTS WILL TOUR COUNTY TO ADVERTISE FAIR

Ten automobiles filled with business men will leave Chamber of Commerce headquarters at 8 o'clock Friday morning and tour Licking and surrounding counties to advertise the County Fair, Sept. 11-14.

Each car will carry illustrated placards, posters and other advertising novelties which will call the attention to the many new attractions provided by the fair board.

The proceeds from the country store of the Farmers' and Merchants' Picnic have provided a fund large enough to procure the best of advertising matter.

Merchants who have cars are urged to call up Chamber of Commerce headquarters, or George Hermann, so that they may make the proper allotment of routes. It is the intention to place every township in the county and the leading towns in surrounding counties.

MEMBERSHIP COUNCIL TO DISCUSS PURE WATER

"Water Purification and more Sewerage" will be the subject of discussion at the meeting of the membership council of the Chamber of Commerce Thursday evening, at 7:45 o'clock. Wesley Montgomery, who was elected to serve out the unexpired term of T. C. Heisley as director for the council, will assume his duties.

The Water Purification committee named by the council has had two meetings and Thursday night there will be presented suggestions how the city may best provide the finances with which to make the improvements proposed by Engineer Barbour of Boston.

Matthews enlisted with a Canadian contingent and has been in France for several weeks. His letter was written July 22 "in France" and in part is as follows:

I have been waiting a long time before I started this letter, but I guess I had better take another chance and write you again. This is my fourth letter to you since I've been over here on this side, but haven't had one letter from you yet.

I guess you must have got one of my letters, for I had a letter from Bob Brown, I suppose he got my address through you. Guess it is all off with us as a Pipe Band now, for we are up at the front in France and the big shells are landing all around us and tearing things up about proper.

We are at present constructing trenches. We are living in dugouts. Things are pretty unhappy, too, and the "eats" are nothing extra, and are generally pretty scarce.

I can look out of our dug out and see the "anti-aircraft" shells from our guns bursting around a German aeroplane. Paper and envelopes are scarce, so I'm using both sides.

Guess I've written to about every one I knew in Newark—Wash, Fred, Grace and Alva, but haven't had one letter yet. How's everything and everybody back home. How's Pop and Betty? (the dog)? How's the Country club coming on. Don't forget to send the Advocate when you answer this. My address now is: Pte. H. Matthews, No. 104522, care 15th Batt. Canadian Contingent, B. E. F., France. We have to put the address in the body of our letters that way now instead of at the head or end of our letters—red tape."

Say! will you send me a packet of D—D—safety razor blades, as I can't get them up here at the line. Guess you can get them at any drug store. I know they keep them at the City Drug store.

Gee! a battery of our big guns has opened up on the Germans now. Every time they go off the ground shakes, and some noise, too."

Os' claps of the Pipe Band are all together yet, so we have a pretty fair time together in spite of everything.

Well, as this is all the paper I have, I'll have to break off. So don't worry about me, as I am all right, and write soon to

Your HARRY.

HAROLD E. RUTLEDGE.

Indianapolis, Aug. 15.—Harold E. Rutledge of Newark, and John K. Roney of Crooksville, were among Ohioans designated yesterday to attend the second officers' training camp at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, who also attended the first camp, but whose instruction will be continued during the second training course.

FROM MR. ATHERTON.

To the Voters of Newark:

I have had compliments passed on myself and felt gratified; but to be complimented with victory by the ballot only the recipient can appreciate it. Gentlemen, I thank you, and if I could tell you how happy I am I know that you would be happy with me. I expected victory but was pleasantly surprised at the overwhelming majority. Now that the race has been narrowed down to myself and the Republican candidate, shall buckle down and make a campaign that will insure me victory on November 6th.

AUTUMN BEAUTIES.

How delightful it is to ride along the country roads and view the ripening grain and fruit and the many changing colors of the autumn. If you want to get the most enjoyment out of the wonderful changes that are about to take place, you should own an automobile. With a car that rides easy, is easy to operate and economical to maintain, you'll get the most enjoyment. Such is the Maxwell, a car that combines all these and many more qualities. Just let Roy J. Baird, 56 West Main street demonstrate one of these cars to you.

August 7, 1917. 4 p. m.
Somewhere in Oklahoma.

Dear Folks at Home:

You will be surprised to hear of this trip, but it is this way. When called to the colors, I canceled my chautauqua dates so far as possible. One county in southwestern Iowa threatened to cancel the entire week if I failed them. We have been trying to fix it ever since, but on Saturday I received the final summons, and am on my way.

If the weather in your tent this afternoon is like this coach, I am sure you would say the trials are yours, to listen to any man speak in such heat is the limit of torture for me. And I have four days of it in store. Two days each way for the trip and all the way from Houston has been through drought and heat. Much of the corn, sugar cane, hay and all crops but cotton are burning up.

Here and there a patch of green from a local rain, but everywhere the streams are dry or very low.

As I have sped through this blistering day, my chief thought has been that I am enjoying a riot privilege. While traveling in foreign lands, I have often had to confess that I had seen but little of my own country. And here am I—viewing the vastness of these prairies! For north-central Texas over the Santa Fe is the typical rolling prairie that one expects to see, and very different from the waste, swampy and scrubland of northeast Texas on the line of the I. G. N. or the Katy.

Settlements are far apart and farmers are isolated, but this great country promises a rich reward to these hardy, brave pioneers. To a man from the wooded belt of Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, a country is nothing without a good supply of timber, therefore Oklahoma is more attractive to me than Texas, for here are many wooded streams. But I don't like the red soil and red water of the streams. Under this burning sun the ground looks like a mass of live coals. But for half an hour past we have passed through a belt that had a heavy rain last night. The soil takes on a richer, deeper color which contrasts strangely to the soft green of the cotton plants with their snowy, bursting balls.

I have been disappointed in the cattle. Grazing is poor and the big herds have been driven back toward the hill country for fodder. Yet I saw one herd of typical horned steers this morning. They were larger and in good condition and such wicked horns! I haven't seen a de-horned specimen in Texas or here and in the North one rarely ever sees a pair of horns. Which is better?

But this is worse than a stupid lecture. We have just passed Guthrie. It looks like a good thrifty town. I am due at Kansas City at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning; take a Burlington train north; leave train at 10, and motor fifty miles to lecture at 2 p. m. And I shall have the best chautauqua smile on with a palm beach suit and will try to start off with my best story. You have had all three this afternoon, as you can sympathize with my audience tomorrow, and with me.

Yours for 1918,
WM. E. HOPKINS.

Pushville—Rushville, Missouri:
1 P. M. Aug. 8, 1917.
Woe is me! I missed connections at Kansas City. In fact the railway official knew nothing about the connection which the agent in Houston, Texas, sold me. And so I have missed the 50-mile auto ride one way, promised and the 25 miles on another route. Besides, I shall reach the town of Farragut (memorial of the illustrious dead), just three hours too late to preside over the expectant audience that has been notified of my coming.

But this is only incidental to the cause of this writing. As I began, we were passing a junction with two side tracks and two stations. On one was "Pushville" and on the other "Rushville." Local information obtained failed to reveal the source or cause of this rivalry or the label that had been stamped upon the surroundings. "Pushville" I could understand, for they do say that a "Flyer" passes this place in the night without stopping! But "Pushville" requires too vivid an imagination to let loose in the Missouri valley in the day time.

I didn't intend to write again so soon, and have no news to tell you this morning only that it rained all night and got so cold that I had to cover up in the mythical Pullman blanket which you have heard Strickland Gillilan describe. When I awoke, I had a bad fit in it in my mouth so you may hear from me next time in some "T. B." Sanitarium, carefully guarded by a Public Health nurse, with nothing to do but spit in a sanitary cup and ride in a wheel chair. You will please have me transferred to Mt. Vernon where the Public Welfare Bureau of Licking County can visit me every day and the average.

This is equal to one bushel extra for every man, woman, and child in the country.

In order to avoid waste, officials of the Department of Agriculture suggest two days of taking care of this large increase:

First, all housewives are urged to use potatoes as far as possible as a substitute for breadstuffs.

Second, to preserve the potatoes for winter use by home storage.

These measures, it is stated, will not only use the potatoes to advantage, but will save wheat.

You appreciate an iced drink during the warm days of summer!

Why not let it be healthful as well as refreshing?</
